Shame about the refrigerator doors though - they look shiny right now, but we all know they're going to be covered in fingerprints and scratches sooner or later...

Well, the stainless steel doors on these counter depth refrigerators are fingerprint resistant, and the black stainless steel gets regular scratches too.
That would be a problem, except Bosch avoids that high-gloss chrome to wipe away fingerprints from customers' refrigerators every hour.
They can be a problem, but you just have to stop customers from walking and after they've bought their refrigerators.
